MISSOULA--

The University of Montana soccer team will travel to Spokane Nov. 20 to play Idaho in a game to decide the Northwest Intercollegiate Soccer League championship. The two teams were tied for first place with 7-1-2 records over the regular season.

This Sunday (Nov. 14) Montana will host non-league opponent Eastern Montana at 1:30, weather permitting. The game will be played on the soccer field east of the Field House.

The playoff for the league championship was made necessary when the conference president decided that figuring the champion on a goals scored/goals scored against would not be just. Idaho would have had a slight edge but one of Montana's victories was by a forfeit and did not apply to the ratio.

The winning team in Saturday's game will receive a $50 cash prize from the league. The Montana booters have already voted to donate the money to the University of Montana library fund should they emerge victorious.
